November 23, 2006

World Heritage Project (WHP), a non-profit media company involved in promotion and preservation of the world heritage sites is embarking on an ambitious project of creating a comprehensive collection of the world heritage sites in both traditional and new media formats.

This would basically entail filming of the sites - stills and video footage - for publication of books and for telecast on television. Proceedings derived from these WHP products will be invested in the communities and the host countries where the projects are conducted, to help preserve the sites and provide environmental and educational assistance.

I, therefore, request you to support this project by giving WHP necessary assistance for successful implementation of their "Treasures of India" project.

Regards,

Yours sincerely,

(Amitabh Kant)
